Personal Data and Your Rights

Personal data has been defined by the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) as ‘any information relating to an identifiable person who can be directly or indirectly identified in particular by reference to an identifier’. This refers to any information about a person that makes that person identifiable, typically, but not restricted to, information such as your name and contact details.

You have the right:

- to be informed about the collection and use of your personal data as well as to access any information we have about you.
- to change your personal data if it is incorrect or incomplete
- to withdraw any personal data that we hold on you, for it to be deleted and disposed of

What Personal Data do we Collect?

We may collect information regarding the following:

- Name
- Address
- Telephone number

This information collected will only be used for strictly legitimate business purposes only and we will never pass on or use your data for marketing purposes. Should you wish to access your personal data that we hold, you can make a ‘subject access request’ in writing, which can be sent to the email or postal address named above.

We reserve the right to make changes to this Privacy Notice from time to time. Any changes will be made available for viewing on our website.
